

A wide-angle photograph of a modern outdoor amphitheater at TU Delft. The seating consists of wide, light-colored concrete steps that curve upwards. Many people are sitting on the steps, some in groups and some individually. To the right of the steps is a green lawn with a few more people. In the background, a tall, grey, conical tower with a metal lattice structure on top stands against a clear blue sky. A multi-story building is visible behind the tower. The foreground shows a paved area with a geometric pattern and some bicycles parked.

We are still working on it.
